Dear Commission:

I have enclosed a formal complaint against Mr. Tom Stiger, who in a special election in 2009 ran for Everett Port Commission, District 2. Mr. Stiger filed no PDC forms for in candidacy in that election.

As the former Prosecuting Attorney for Snohomish County, I am a firm believer in open government and the necessity for full and open disclosure. It is my belief that Mr. Stiger failed to disclosure expenditures which significantly exceed the maximum for non-disclosure.

I have enclosed the Complaint; a summary of advertising in the Everett Herald; and copies of those ads. In addition, Mr. Stiger had signs and handouts.

Some might say that the necessity for disclosure is not as great in small districts, but I believe in Everett Port District (which has over 40,000 voters) the necessity is greater, because of the lack of scrutiny by the media.

As a voter in this district, I ask the appropriate steps should be taken against Mr. Stiger.

Sincerely,

James H. Krider

On the Web

A group opposed to risqué behavior at drive-through coffee huts in Snohomish County has started a Web site, www.takeactionsnoco.info.

fight.

What troubled him was that the scope of the law could have unintended consequences.

A portion of Cooper's ordinance would do away with a rule that deems businesses adult if they get more than 25 percent of their business from adult entertainment. Cooper wants that to apply to any businesses that makes money from porn or nudity.

Gossett said doing away with the 25 percent requirement could have unintended consequences for corner stores that sell adult magazines that only account for a small portion of business.

"We want to deal with this and we want to deal with this right," Gossett said.

Cooper acknowledged that his proposal needs work, but says that it's time for a serious discussion to begin at one of the council's upcoming Monday or Wednesday meetings. That way, they can start work before the end of the county budget process, which lasts through November.

"The council as a whole deserves some criticism for not trying to move it forward sooner," he said. "We've got some work to do, but we're committed to starting the process and getting it going."

While elected officials hammer out new laws, people who live and work in South Snohomish County have started a Web site — www.takeactionsnoco.info — to show their opposition to the stands. The site includes a list of businesses with work trucks spotted visiting the stands.

"We've had a good handful of businesses appalled their advertising dollars have been taken in front of these stands," said Rhonda Bremond, who started the Web site. She owns a business near a Grab-n-Go Espresso stand and has been a vocal opponent.

One business forbade its employees from visiting the stands when its name appeared on the list, she said. Another business had its lawyer send her a cease-and-desist letter.

"I'm not trying to pick a fight," she said. "I want to alert the public and these businesses. At least we know we see them."

The original plan included posting explicit video footage and photos of baristas caught behaving badly. Bremond said she's still mulling over whether she wants to publicize something she's trying to fight.

"I don't want to turn into a peep show," she said.

prejudice firsthand.

"I went through it," Hafner said. He said he was at Bremerton High School when he came out as a gay teen. "I was 16. It was tough a lot of days."

Thompson, a 1983 graduate of Mariner High School, said he didn't come out until he was 24. Even so, and although he dated girls in high school, other kids "called me gay anyway."

"I was in drama and choir. There is so much stereotyping," Thompson said.

Barbara Clark-Elliott isn't gay, but she knows the visceral fear of hate-based violence.

"I have a gay son," said Clark-Elliott, president of the Seattle chapter of Parents, Families & Friends of Lesbians and Gays, also known as PFLAG.

The Renton woman said that when her son, now 30, came out at age 19, her worries had nothing to do with parental disappointment, or even AIDS. "My first thought was, 'Oh my gosh, he's going to get hurt by someone who hates him,'" she said.

As for those who argue that hate-crime laws give some groups "special rights," Clark-Elliott said, disc.

In the decade since she's known her son is gay, Clark-Elliott has seen progress. She and other PFLAG members were part of this year's Renton River Days parade. "We were overwhelmed with the response of people along the sidelines. There is clapping and thumbs-up," she said.

Like Judy Shepard, she's a mother with a cause she never expected to champion.

"There's a lot more hard work to do," Clark-Elliott said.

Elect Tom STIGER To the Port of Everett Commission

New jobs and expanded services... $43.1 million federal grant for the expanded South Terminal. This project will... and create 835 construction jobs.

Tom's Position on Other Important Issues:

- Port
Tom does not favor the proposed mortgage rate increase. In fact, he supports a discount for boat owners who live in the Port district.
- Collins & Weverhanser Buildings
Tom wants to restore both of these historical buildings, creating public/private partnerships for community and marina users. This can be done without using tax levy money.
- Yes 5 Member Commission
Tom does not believe in big government. Expanding from 3 to 5 commissioners will not solve any problems and will cost $150,000 the first year.
- Annual Tax Levy
Tom will support the phase out and elimination of the tax levy. The port needs to "tighten its own belt" and be self-supporting.
- Port Gardner Wharf
The port needs to get control back from the bankrupt developers and develop the property for marina related use. Now is the time to create opportunities for small businesses and new jobs.
- Mukilteo Tank Farm
Tom thinks the best use for this property is to share the area with the cities of Mukilteo and Everett for waterfront parks, expanded NOAA marine lab, a new Washington State Ferry terminal, and expanded Sound Transit facilities.

Mr. Philip E. Stutzman

Public Disclosure Commission

Subject: Complaint filed by James Krider, PDC Case 12-139

I have enclosed the C-4 form for the November 3, 2009 Port of Everett Special Election which I failed to file in a timely manner.

I believe the C-3 forms for cash receipts of contributions were properly filed.

The difference in contributions and expenses were $15,064.65 which I paid for with personal funds

It was truly an oversight on my part in dealing with the loss of the election and payment of campaign expenses.

Please let me know if you should require any additional information.

Sincerely,

Tom M. Stiger

RE: PDC Case 12-139

DATE: April 2, 2012

This memo/fax is in response to the questions you have asked in your 3/29/12 e-mail.

The special election was necessitated by Commissioner Connie Niva moving out of the port district.

Her move created an opening for the unexpired two year term. Five candidates filed for the November 3, 2009 election. No one recruited or encouraged me to run for the office, to the contrary, because of my age, 71, some of my family and close friends advised other wise. Having served as a port commissioner over 30 years ago and having a continuing interest in port activities were the motivating reasons for running. There was no primary election because of the late filing period. I decided to run and filed on 9/4/09.

On the C1 form I listed my wife, Rose Marie Stiger, as treasurer since she worked with me on a daily basis and opened the mail and kept track of the contributions. My son, Chris helped with the campaign and signed the original signature card when we opened a checking account with Frontier Bank on 9/22/09. He made most of the deposits.

None of us had had any prior experience with the PDC reporting requirements. I admit we did little "homework" in preparing to file and relied mainly on the PDC internet site for information and forms. Because of the special election calendar there was no opportunity to attend any campaign workshops.

I admit the failure to file a final C-4 report was my responsibility and with the loss of the election and bills to pay it was an oversight on my part. I felt we had done a good job of reporting all contributions which I felt was the most important disclosure to make. We don't recall any one bringing attention to fact that I failed to report the final C-4 prior to the James Krider complaint being filed.

I hope this reply answers your questions. I will follow up with a phone call to answer any additional questions or to clarify my responses.
